Painstaking work

Time, effort, planning, and frustration were all part of the events that filled the school year. The beauty of the prom did not just materialize. The football team started preparing for the season less than two months after the last season had ended. And the band practiced in the hot August sun from eight in the morning until two in the afternoon for two straight weeks.

These people worked many hours to bring all the ingredients necessary for success together. When doing anything that will be seen by your peers or the public a general goal is to produce an event that will trouble the mind to recall a moment that equalled to what they have just witnessed.

The Goshen Relays (the annual spring track classic) has grown into what is considered the most prestigious track meet in the Midwest. The event was orchestrated by Athletic Director Herb Resler for the twelfth straight year. Besides the over 1000 athletes that participated in the 85 relays there are other people that make the relays what they are.

Over 200 people from the Goshen community, GHS faculty, and student body volunteer to run field events, take tickets, and work concessions for the annual classic. Local businesses sponsored the awards given to the athletes to help cut the cost for GHS. These volunteers are an integral part of the success of the Goshen Relays.

Relays Director Herb Resler stated, "It would be difficult to hold the Relays without the volunteers, the entire community is proud of the tradition that the Relays have."

Another very important event is graduation. Guidance Counselor Bernice Dwyer has spearheaded the commencement exercises for the past ten years.

From November when caps and gowns are ordered to June 2 when each senior walks across the platform to receive his diploma Dwyer has seen to it that every aspect of the graduation ceremonies is in line.

This may seem like a bundle of work for one day's celebration, but Dwyer doesn't think of it as a chore.

"I thoroughly enjoy it. I volunteered over ten years ago. I saw a need for someone to do this year after year," she said.

Dwyer's responsibilities include being a liaison between the seniors and the principal, arranging for caps and gowns to be ordered, helping the senior class decide upon an announcement style, and organizing the senior classes marching order.

Enjoyment and pride in what she is doing are the driving factors behind Dwyer's continuation as graduation director.

So many people sweat diligently to accomplish tasks for which the school will be renowned. The behind-the-scene toils often go unnoticed by the onlooker. The toils and heart-spirited giving of their time is behind every victory, every scholarship, and every curtain call. Split lunch causes rift

Extra curricular activities, ball games, dances, intramurals, ski trips, and convocations all helped to sustain the students through a difficult year of change.

The split lunch periods divided the school. Not divided in the sense of ideas but divided in friendship and comradery. This division placed great emphasis on the after school activities that reinforced the unification of the student body.

Many students used dances as an escape, to release a little energy. This was exemplified as the song "Shout" (the song popularized in the movie "Animal House") was played. The shy dancer as well as the proficient bopper would crowd the dance floor. Suddenly the floor would be covered with bodies kicking, screaming, and loving every minute.

Whether you were one of those kicking his legs wildly on the floor or one of those on the bleachers shaking your head at how crazy it all looked, you may not have realized this dance was a way that the student body was unified. (by Brett Mathis)

Messick receives coveted crown

Homecoming week manifested how fun this annual event can be. Even though events were new and different, the students gave strong support in the class competitions and for the football team. There were many who dressed up or helped to put up hall decorations.

A big change in the Homecoming week was a shortened spirit week with only two dress-up days instead of five. The first day consisted of a combination of toga, baby, punk, and beach day. The second and last day was Big Red Day, when everyone dressed up in red. Toga and punk days were the most popular, where students were seen wrapped in sheets or with unusual color sprayed into their hair. By winning the competition, the freshman class proved to be the most talented dressers.

In response to the shortened dress-up days, Mrs. Nelda Miller, Student Council sponsor said, "We felt that the students thought that a week was too long. Most dressed up on certain days of the week."

"Student Council couldn't decide on just one particular dress-up day, so they decided to combine various options for one day."

Student Council was also responsible for the return of the traditional bonfire before the game. Miller stated, "The bonfire went very well. I was pleasantly surprised with how well it went."

Finally, the big event of the week was the new pregame competition. Games were devised to make acting crazy look like lots of fun. Included were the panty hose race, the toilet paper race, an obstacle course, and a yelling contest.

The pantyhose race proved the funniest because fans were able to see the guys rushing to put on a pair of pantyhose and finish the race. Another humorous race was the toilet paper race where a student from each class was wrapped in toilet paper by classmates and had to be the first to sit on a portable toilet. The obstacle course consisted of wheel burrowing, running backwards, leap frogging, a three-legged sack racing, and team running while tied together with a rope. During all the races, the participants had to carry a baton. Once again, the freshmen won the competitions.

One of the high points of the evening was the crowning of the Homecoming queen, Chrissy Messick, senior, who was escorted by Rick Rohn, senior. Her court consisted of Seniors Kim Haney, Minnie Rajagopalan, Kim Gentry; Tina Miller, junior; Mindy Wieland, sophomore; and Becky Swanson, freshman.

Spirits appear before your eyes

Again, the Crimson Players of 1984 involved in this year's fall production of "Blithe Spirit," a three act farce written by Noel Coward, deserve a loud round of applause for the Nov. 2 and 3 performances.

Auditions were held Sept. 12. Fourteen students were chosen to begin rehearsal.

One cast member came a long way to be in the production. Nadine Miles, an Australian exchange student, was cast as the eccentric Madame Arcatti.

Directed by Mrs. Becky Tichnor and assisted by student director Amy Snowberger, the production rehearsals began.

Understudies helped with prompting for a grueling seven weeks.

Also involved with the production was the On Stage class. It was responsible for set construction and selling tickets. Rob Franks and assistant Elaine Wiggins worked together as managers.

The plot revolved around the supernatural world of ghosts. The protagonist, Charles, has to deal with his ex-wife, Elvira, returning to his life as a ghost, while his present wife, Ruth, becomes enraged with her seemingly deranged husband.

Dr. and Mrs. Bradman assisted with the seances, while Edith provided maid service and comic relief.

Other highlights included the use of technical special effects in the seances conducted by the medium, Madame Arcatti.

Still, a majority of the total audience, 350 drama lovers, were left puzzled to how the stage crew made a table mysteriously elevate during a seance. That stage secret will remain a mystery. (by Nadine Miles)

Group crosses border

At the beginning of the year 39 students, along with six teachers traveled to Stratford, Canada. The purpose of the trip was to view plays written by William Shakespeare and to visit the beautiful Canadian sights.

Everyone saw the classic plays, "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Merchant of Venice" while they were there. There was also an option to see "A Midsummer Night's Dream." However, not all the plays were by Shakespeare. Two other plays that were offered were "Separate Tables" by Terence Rattigan and "A Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams.

Each play contained a different kind of setting, even though they were on the same stage. The actors transferred the excitement of the plays very effectively. Everyone sat in awe of the battles that were fought and cried during the sad and tender moments.

The plays weren't Stratford's only attraction. Students spent their free time visiting attractive shops and the expensive restaurants.

One favorite store was the Green Room. It contained all kinds of 1930's, 40's, and 50's fashions, plus some modern clothes. Everything ranged from all varieties of hats to ladies' evening gowns. There were also many varieties of masks and costume accessories. Another favorite was the Old Mill, which featured wool and leather items.

Since everyone had to eat, there were bound to be several favorite restaurants. One favorite modeled an English pub. One of the most elegant restaurants in Stratford was called The Church. It catered mostly to people who wanted to eat before or after seeing a play in the evening.

4-H teaches responsibility and showmanship

The procrastinators club sits around and plans what it is going to do year to year. Not so for one of the most popular local clubs that involves Goshen High School.

4-H Club continues to keep GHS students busy year-round perfecting their talents that they display. But many associate the club only with the Elkhart County fair. 4-H has different club divisions. Some of the more popular clubs are cat, dog, horse, clothing, and personality.

The principle requirement for students to join 4-H is that once they commit themselves to a particular project, they carry it out and present it at the county fair. Ribbons, trophies, and national pins are the types of awards that are received for projects. Some projects go on to compete at the state fair. The awards aren't the only kind of rewards received, there's also the feeling of satisfaction for what they have done.

Minnie Ragagopalan, senior, replied, "I think 4-H is great. It helps people to take on responsibility while learning and having fun. One meets many different people, also, through 4-H."

Likewise, "4-H builds leadership skills. It is a worthwhile experience," stated Kenda Resler, junior.

M. Rajagopalan and Resler have both been on Good Morning Michiana because of their 4-H interests. Resler has also won a horse from entering the Bob Evans Quarter Horse Contest.

Why do people join 4-H? Most of the high school members have been involved since grade school. M. Rajagopalan joined because she was interested in the activities offered. She's been a nine year member of the Model 4-Hers (treasurer) and a six year member of the Elkhart County 4-H Dog Club (vice president). Although she took Foods, Drawing, Personality, and Wildlife, Dog Club has given her the most satisfaction.

Jenny Odle and Chingu Rajagopalan, sophomores, are also very active in Dog Club. Odle is president of Dog Club and is very active in Cat Club.

Odle said, "I joined because it sounded interesting. I feel it educates and improves your skills in many ways like public speaking and leadership."

Resler is president of the local Model 4-Hers and past president of the Saddle Club. She has been involved with various activities for eight years, however, horse showing is her main activity. She also participates in the 4-H Speakers Bureau. Resler has put the skills she has learned through 4-H to use by teaching children with learning disabilities how to ride horses. (by Linda Nisley)

"Oakley" hits mark

The musical, based upon the true life story of Annie Oakley, portrayed the success and failure of the Buffalo Bill Show.

Frank Butler (Jeff Wertz), a conceited marksman, meets his match in Annie Oakley (Kim Johnson), a backwoods girl from Dark County. With encouragement from Buffalo Bill (Rob Franks), the aging show owner, and Charlie Davenport (Bryan Lubeck), his faithful flunky, they persuade Annie to join the show. This event upsets Dolly Tate (Kelli Moynihan), Charlie's sister.

Bill and Charlie decide to give Annie top-billing, in an attempt to draw business away from the Pawnee Bill (David Omo) Show, which enrages Frank. So he leaves the show and joins Pawnee Bill. Sitting Bull (Corey Stewart), who had previously been with the Pawnee Bill Show, joins up with Bill because of his fascination of his "little sure shot" Annie.

In the end Annie purposely loses to Frank in a shooting match to win his love, which merges the two shows together.

"There's no business like show business" was just one of the uplifting songs presented in the three-day run of the musical. The orchestra, led by Mr. Brian Kirk, accompanied, while Mrs. Beekie Tichenor and Miss Marcia Yost directed the cast. (by Tammy Buckmaster and Robert Franks)

Academics

The mental anguish

Goshen's learning process encountered new faces and rules behind the scenes inside the classrooms. Computer enthusiasts saw Mr. Wayne Lambright's schedule totally devoted to teaching computer classes. Miss Connie Chase, Miss Alyson Williams, Mrs. Helen Rose, Ms. Miller-Jacobs, and Mr. Mark Dame tackled new positions.

Members of the Marine Biology were temporarily sidelined in great tropical weather with the flu, while the rest of us saw a dreary-weathered spring break pass by. No junior will miss an Allister Cooke movie.

But many didn't have time for movies. Many students achieved national and statewide recognition for their accomplishments in achievement tests, math, vocational trades at the career center, band, jazz band, marching band, Crimsonaires, newspaper, and yearbook. Countless hours of work prepared those students, who were often busy with sports and an after-school job. Parents, teachers, and friends supported those who often needed that little extra push.

Despite the factors demeaning quality education, it is obvious Goshen students beat the odds and became the academic movers and shakers. (by Craig Showalter)

The figured world

Stricter State requirements in math, combined with requests for more and different courses, caused changes in the curriculum. Mr. Wayne Lambright's schedule was arranged to accommodate computer math interests.

Miss Connie Chase was added to the staff this year to help with the class load.

The annual American High School Mathematics Examination was held on February 26, 1985 with Goshen finishing a competitive first in the state for the first time. The team score consisted of the top three scores from each school. Chris Bowman finished first in the school for the second time, and claimed second in the state. Mike Wirtzig finished 13th in the state with Michael Hildebrand and Jeff Wertz tying to finish 30th in the state. Exam Manager Mrs. Judy Cagley explained that 85 schools participated this year and 78 GHS students took part in the event.

Other top ten finishers include Tracy Slabach, Joe Grise, Scott Baker, Amy Gingerich, Terry Slabach, and Bryan Lubeck.

The business department went through few alterations during the year. Other than a few minor changes in teachers' schedules, the year was spent preparing students for colleges and careers.

Sophomore Carol Lee summed up her typing semester, "I felt that the courses I took in typing will give many benefits and skills that I will need."

The social studies department provided the student body with many different opportunities, citizenship for freshmen students and US History for juniors. Seniors took Civics and had a choice of Psychology or Sociology. Seniors will remember the famous "optionals" of Max Slabaugh's Civics class. This involves extra work in order to receive an A or B. The working future

Hands on experience and focusing on a particular subject gave students a break from the regular class room setting and provided an exciting and busy year for Elkhart Area Career Center, building trades, and shop class students.

Building Trades gave students with a good vocational background training and skills that weren't available in a classroom.

Don Biller, senior, stated "I felt that it was a great learning experience and it will help in the future."

Not only was it a new experience for the students of the building trades class, but it was the first house that was built under the direction of Mr. Pete Weddel, he commented, "I enjoyed working with the Junior-Senior level students who are interested in the building trades industry as an occupation."

The EACC helped the students focus their attention to a area of study that they, as adults, would use as a source of income or as a major hobby. Horticulture, auto body repair, and cosmetology were just a few of the courses that students could study during the three-hour period that the EACC is open.

Shop classes offered on the GHS campus also varied widely.

Auto Mechanics gave the students the chance to learn engine repair, brake system maintenance, and the chance to keep costly repair bills down by doing the repair work on their own cars during class time.

Woods class was a class that many students left with a valuable piece of furniture. For instance, one student produced a waterbed. These works could only be realized when the needed tools were available and many hours were allotted for precise carefully finished work. (by Brett Mathis and Craig Showalter)

The verified fact

Marine Biology remained the highlight of the science department.

Trying to cope with the planning of the trip to Florida, along with planning daily lessons for the regular science class can be challenging, however.

"Much work was done evenings and on weekends. Miss Williams and I, with the help of a number of students, did the pre-trip planning and preparations. We have developed a packing inventory list during recent years and we pack by checking things off the list," explained Mr. Carl Weaver, coordinator of the Florida trip in the keys.

Special moments occurred included a Palm Sunday and Easter services by Dr. Van Curen, according to Weaver.

Elsewhere, the Earth Science class ventured to the Fidler's gravel pit, while Biology dissected frogs and rats.

The foreign world

Foreign countries and cultures were explored by Goshen High School students who participated in an elective class of foreign language.

Also, foreign students new to the United States, who spoke limited English and needed help, got assistance from Miss Tina Stoltzfus.

Teaching foreign languages this year were Mr. Carl Horneman, Spanish; Mr. Doug Cartwright and Mr. Carl Fancil, French; and Miss Tina Stoltzfus, English as a Second Language.

Students also traveled to Bethany for German classes.

Horneman stated, "We are using new books this year that are more student oriented. I would say that the students are learning more."

"The books, for example, included material about culture and life, not just academic materials," he continued.

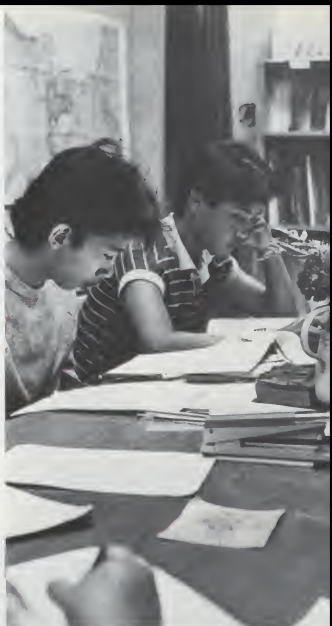

"Before Christmas, every class built a piñata, and then we pounded the daylight's out of it," Horneman said.

Stoltzfus thought that in her class, "My students had a place where they could associate and ask questions without feeling insecure."

"Many foreign students have befriended each other and I think that other American students need to work at including foreign students in their activities. They already feel strange, but if we try, we can each learn from each other," she explained. (by Mark Josselyn)

The working body

The Physical Education and Health department put a strong emphasis on attitudes toward fitness this year. PE students were given a variety of activities to participate in, while health classes promoted the same fitness ideas in a classroom setting.

PE teacher and athletic trainer, Mr. Don Ogle commented, "The students were exposed to many different activities that promote fitness and leisure activities. The student's attitude toward fitness is a big concern to the department. We as teachers constantly stress the attitude and reality, of a lifetime of fitness."

In the freshman health classes the students were taught the body's make-up. They were taught where the body's glands were, where muscle reactions originated, and how the bodies nerve cells differed.

Elsewhere, in Effects class, the students learned how different drugs affected the body's systems. The students gained first hand knowledge by having guest speakers talk to the class on the physical and psychological affects that drugs have on a body. (by Craig Showalter)

The performed arts

By attending and appreciating Goshen High School events such as "Annie Get Your Gun" audiences heightened their sense of culture.

Elsewhere, the Crimson Marching Band carried its superior tunes around the state to impress judges and audiences.

Otherwise, local audiences's eyes and ears were closely engaged whenever the Crimsonaires were performing songs like "Tuxedo Junction".

Students involved in the arts say there's no better feeling than performing that note or line to perfection—to the point the performer and the audience want to cry. Then only a standing ovation seems proper, just like after the marching band's performance at the homecoming football game.

The show stoppers

Crimsonaires provided a pleasant new sound for Goshen High School.

Under the second-year direction of Miss Marcia Yost, the group received a first ranking at the State Madrigal competition and a superior rating at the State Swing Choir competition.

Along with 40 other performances, the 23 group members had to arrive at 7:00 a.m. every Tuesday through Friday to practice, since a class did not meet during the day.

That practice paid off at the primary concerts which included performing at the Northridge Spring Fling, several mother-daughter banquets, a tourage of the city's elementary and junior-high schools, and the "Crimsonaire Spring Spectacular," featuring senior solos and the theme medley, "American Pop."

Concerts posed many unexpected challenges, such as extraordinary small performing spaces, low ceilings, numerous steps and pitfalls, and slippery surfaces. But grace and showmanship shined through providing excellent entertainment.

"Performing in Crimsonaires was an experience I'll never forget. The people and the fun we had provided a year of extensive learning and a time of professional maturing," said Brian Lubeck, senior. (by Robert Franks)

Only positive comments can be made concerning the 1984-85 Freshman/Sophomore Choir and the Junior/Senior Concert Choir.

A plan for next year has the department going from two choirs to three.

This plan will include in with the Freshman/Sophomore Choir and the Junior/Senior Concert Choir the addition of Womens Concert Choir.

"Walking on the Green Grass," Schubert's "Mass in G," "Last Words of David," and "Down by the Riverside" were just a few of the favorite songs of choir.

Excited about the restructuring of the choirs, Miss Marcia Yost said, "The program is growing and on the go."

The poised winner

The continual success of the Crimson marching band was seen this year in an award winning season, highlighted by the long awaited victory over Concord High School.

The band's music was custom arranged for the band from the musical "Jesus Christ Superstar". The band opened with the theme from "E.T." Then continued with the "Superstar Melody" featuring: "Heaven on Their Minds," "I Don't Know How to Love Him," and "John 19:1", followed by a baritone sax quintet in "Superstar," closing with "King Harold" and overture. The synthesizer, purchased the previous summer, was also featured in the show.

The competition season started at the Chesterton Invitational where the band received second place in Class B. The Memorial Invitational was the next stop for an exhibition performance before district contest at Penn

High School. Capturing awards for Best Marching and Maneuver, Best General Effect, and Best Auxillary, receiving a superior rating, Kokomo was the sight for regional contest, where the band also received a superior rating, but just falling short of reaching the top five bands, to compete at State contest at the Hoosier Dome.

The band also performed at the five home football games and the away game at Northridge High School.

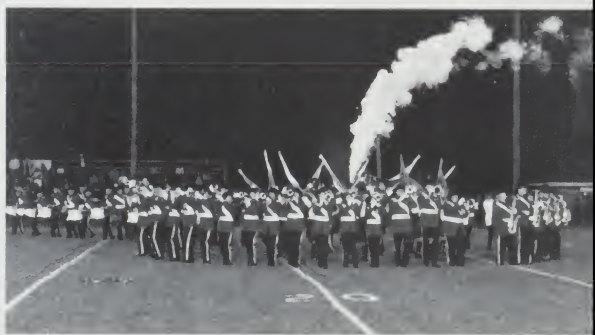

At district contest, the auxillary corps won the Best Auxillary for the third year in a row. They were winners at the Chesterton Invitational. Out of 440 guards in Indiana, they are ranked in the top ten.

This year's major accomplishment was the band's acceptance to perform at the Blue Bonnet Bowl in Houston, Texas, on New Year's Day, 1986. (by Melissa Wilden)

The finely tuned

Among concert band, symphonic band, jazz band, and orchestra, music students had great opportunity to find all of their talents and begin to tone them.

Concert band performed on three occasions this year. They performed at the annual Christmas concert. February brought the Pops concert, at which students got to play along with Danny Barber, a professional trumpet player. Symphonic Band was described by Mr. Dave Plank as "One of the best groups ever at GHS."

Awards for concert and symphonic bands were given to letter-winners and to seniors at the Pops concert. The Senior Service Award went to Don Harley, and the Outstanding Achievement award went to Zealla Flores, Andrea Cherniak, Don Parsons, and Rick Wedge.

Jazz band gave approximately 12 to 14 performances this year. It performed for Crimsoinaires and the choir contest in February.

One of the high points during the year was the Elmhurst Festival in April. As one of ten bands, the GHS Jazz ensemble was chosen to play later that evening. Soloist awards were given to Zealla Flores, Outstanding Trumpeter; Don Parsons, Outstanding Trombone; and Brian Lubeck, Outstanding Guitar.

The Fort Wayne Northside Festival provided students with a great challenge. The jazz ensemble tied for first place out of a field of 15 other bands. The band received an outstanding trumpet section and outstanding trombone section. Don Parsons received an Outstanding Trombone Soloist award.

Plank commented on the year by saying "We've come up against the best and come out on top. The band was really a professional group."

Another group, pep band, backed the basketball team, always using a professional attitude by playing its best whether the team happens to be losing or winning, said Mr. Max Mault.

The band served those students who like to support the team.

Basketball games also served as an outlet for the dance class, thus the guard.

Concentrating on the strings, the orchestra's highlight was its chance to accompany "Annie Get Your Gun." The group was awarded a first division rating in the spring contest. Mr. Brian Kirk believed the orchestra progressed considerably. (by Craig Showalter)

The English Word

Remaining the largest department on campus, the English department was affected by very few curriculum changes. The biggest changes were made in the staff with three additions: Mr. Mark Dame, Ms. Miller-Jacobs, and Mrs. Helen Rose.

Two classes, Self Discovery and Woman's place, were dropped from the curriculum. Student who were interested in classic stage had the opportunity to go to Stratford, Canada, to witness renditions of some of the best plays ever written. Advanced placement and advanced study were benefits offered, also.

The stressed staff

En route to producing the Crimson, the staff did not realize how big of a task a 176 page book is to publish in such a short period.

From the rough advertising sales campaign in September to the deadlines in May, the staff had a great challenge.

In nine months time the staff had to put together a quality book that every student would want. The amount of work and pride that went into this book was tremendous with each day and after each page was redone to correct someone's errors.

Everyone on staff made a contribution. Many put in extra time, during lunch, before school, after school, and on weekends. The staff writers had to try to squeeze in an interview with a student or teacher who often were difficult to find or too busy to talk. Photographers canvased the city and campus to find the pictures that make a yearbook, while the editors hoped to catch all of the mistakes.

The editors and advisor through sheer determination learned the ropes and began to accomplish their tasks. Often Mr. Mark Dame's pressure would build to the point where he could barely type another character into his computer.

"For possibly the first time in GHS's history, the yearbook and the staff is in touch with the sophisticated world of high school journalism," said Dame.

Linda Nisely, co-editor, took third place in copy editing at the "Media Merit-thon" at Carmel High School.

The improved press

Under the leadership and guidance of Mr. Mark Dame, the Tomahawk "laid-out" an outstanding school year in the publications department at Goshen High School.

Improving the quality and by doubling the quantity produced helped keep all GHS students and faculty informed of the latest happenings here at the school.

According to Editor-in-chief Mike Snyder, senior, "Our goals were to publish as many issues as possible while improving the quality in the process. It was a little shaky at first, but I think that we had a very good year."

First-year Journalism teacher Dame also added, "Each issue improved significantly in content. I hope we have served the school better than last year."

Pointing out some problems, both Dame and Snyder agreed that insufficient funds slowed the progress of the paper. Dame also noted that lack of student training hindered the quality of the publication.

To help improve their journalistic skills, several students traveled to various workshops held throughout the state.

Susan Harris, sports editor and senior, who placed first in the sports division in the "Media Merit-thon" held at Carmel High School, and sponsored by the INDIANAPOLIS STAR and Indiana University, commented, "It was a great experience and I had a really great time."

Students interact with community

Activities provided an alternative to the time spent in the classroom.

One of the more notable activities that took place during the school year was the formation of the group SADD, students against driving drunk. This group was formed by Miss Dori Keyser and a few students to make the student body and the community more aware of the threat that drunk driving posed.

Members of the group could be seen on television and heard on the radio around the holiday season and graduation urging people not to drink and drive. The group met weekly to discuss future activities and view films depicting the tragedies that occur when driving drunk.

An annual event that went off as usual was the Senior Follies. The follies which showcased Seniors throwing caution to the wind and releasing their inhibitions which drew an overflow crowd of 600 peoples.

Council serves GHS

Student council gave many of the students a chance to get involved in school decisions.

Student council was involved in many different events. They planned homecoming spirit week and a Christmas spirit week, where Christmas kisses were sold. Kisses were sold kisses for Valentine's Day, which had to be postponed until St. Patrick's Day due to snow days. Also, a track spirit week was presented in April.

Student council made many donations of food and money to several organizations in the area. The donations tallied up to $1,300 for the year. Organizations receiving the donations were the Salvation Army, with a canned food drive, and Serving Hand International, receiving school supplies and donations taken at the sophomore variety show. It also sponsored a blood donor day for the Red Cross.

"I was satisfied. I think that student council contributed to the school year a great deal and can be a stronger group if it has strong officers," Mrs. Charlene Cook, sponsor, commented. (by Tammy Buckmaster)

Few claim prestige

By being members of Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, and Media Club, students accomplished many goals.

Many of the students gained valuable experience and acclaim this year. For Honor Society and Quill and Scroll, their aim was to honor the academically outstanding students, and those with journalistic skills. Media Club helped introduce students to photograph skills and basic functions.

Honor Society inducted its 52 members, junior and seniors, at the beginning of the year. The members were chosen on the basis of their academic standing and other criteria. "The Honor Society is a good society. It gives the students a goal to aim for in their high school years," Mr. Herb Amstutz, sponsor, stated.

Honor Society gave its members recognition and honor that they deserved for their academic accomplishments.

Outstanding journalistic skills were what the members of Quill and Scroll possessed. They exhibited their skills at several area competitions. They made the major decisions concerning the publications. At the present time, there are only three members, but there are plans for initiating more next year.

"Quill and Scroll set a good precedence for next year," commented Mr. Mark Dame, sponsor. Though there was a massive amount of work for them this year, the members accomplished much.

For Media Club, learning and applying what they knew was their main activity. The students mainly involved were student aides in the library. They shelved books and magazines and worked with different tasks in the library. They also worked with video publications and Super 8 film making. One of the new editions of their tasks was the new computer circulation system. It cataloged the overdue books and magazines. Media Club members got a chance to work with this system, but mainly dealt with the library tasks.

Team spirit evoked

Team spirit was the main objective of both the speech team and the sophomore class. They reached many goals they had set for themselves.

The speech team gained valuable experience and recognition.

"This year is a foundation which we can build on next year," Miss Alyson Williams, sponsor, stated.

The three prominent winners were those who achieved regional status. Kenda Resler, junior, poetry; Chingu Rajagopalan, sophomore, oratorical interpretation; and Minnie Rajagopalan, senior, impromptu competed well. In addition, Minnie qualified for State competition.

The sophomore class presented "The Sophomore Variety/Talent Show" to a lively audience. The class planned an excellent evening of entertainment. Masters of Ceremonies David Swihart and Mike Riegsecker lightened the evening's mood with jokes and comments on the acts and skits.

Skits such as "When the Lamp Goes Out" and "Beauty Pageant" received many laughs from the audience. Talent abounded in many of the sophomores. Acts such as Sue Kiess playing a piano solo of "Solace" and Steph Dolph singing "You Took My Heart by Surprise" proved talents deserved recognition.

Coming out in full force during their finale, the cast sang "We Are the World." It showed the class' concern of the Ethiopian tragedy by donating half its proceeds from the show to help the starving in Ethiopia. The "Sophomore Variety/Talent Show" drew the sophomores together in support of one cause, thus creating a spirited team.

Students serve people

It has been an active year for Campus Life, Key Club, and Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD). They have been involved in many activities in the community.

For SADD, it has been a particularly busy year. One of its first activities was a balloon lift in November. It was in coordination with Fairfield, Concord, and Northridge high schools. Its next endeavor was presenting the school's only convocation, which enlightened those about the horrors of being the cause of drunk driving accidents. The group promotes drinking responsibly and passed out corresponding literature at basketball games. The first-year chapter attended the SADD conference and made awareness commercial spots on South Bend television stations.

Miss Dori Keyser sponsored the group.

Key Club's activities were less frequent. One of its main activities was the freshman mixer.

President Linda Nisley said, "Our main goal was to increase member-

Campus Life planned many activities. Their trip to Florida during spring break was the big trip of the year. The group also had an all-nighter at the YMCA-YWCA and watched Chicago and Detroit play football.

Much of the members' time was spent at meeting and discussions. They discussed many important topics that were important to teens, such as drug abuse, sex, and peer pressure. (by Tammy Buckmaster)

Groups provide spirit

Encouraging school spirit was the main goal of the cheerleaders, Ragin' Reds, track maids, bat girls, and Grapplerettes. Each of these groups did its share of cheering the athletes on in the many sports.

For the track maids, bat girls, and Grapplerettes, there were many more duties for them to do. Filling out stat sheets, cleaning up equipment, and helping the coaches with anything they needed done were just a few of their duties during the year.

"Assisting the athletes allows me to show my school spirit and to see what really goes on at a track meet," said Linda Nisley, senior and track maid.

Ragin' Reds helped recognize the successful athletes during the year. They posted signs in the hallways and on the lockers to give credit to the many athletes in the school.

The cheerleaders were a driving force in the school during football and basketball season. Their motivation and dedication helped keep the school cheering.

Seniors show spirit

Performing in front of a sell-out crowd, the seniors incorporated wit and talent to produce the Senior Follies.

Led by Master of Ceremonies Mike Snyder, Mark Josselyn, and Tracy Fry, comedy abounded.

Acts included satire on the girls of each class and the strange ways they act, on the recent phenomenon of hallsweeps, and on the Writing Themes class.

Brett Mathis recited an editorial against women's liberation, while Bryan Lubeck and Tim Ropp anchored the news.

Music was provided by some marching band members, a girl-trio of scatters, and plenty of lip-synchers.

Seniors achieve awards

Highlighting the senior awards ceremony held the Thursday evening before graduation, was the announcement of the outstanding boy and girl.

Kim Gentry won the honor of the girl. While for the first time, two boys, Joe Grise and Chris Bowman, were co-honored.

Valectorians were Bowman and Minnie Rajagopalan, while Gentry, Tracy Slabach and Joe Grise, were salutatorians.

Other coveted awards included outstanding publications staff member Brett Mathis; perfect attendance, Annette Stanfill and Debbie Wiederman;

Mike Hartman Spirit Award, Kurt Verhoff; Kim Hartzler Memorial Award, John Yody; Goshen News Scholastic Award, National Math Award, and Bausch & Lomb Science Award, Bowman; Business Education Typing Award, Andrea Reed; and Business Education Award, Steve Sentell.

Many enjoy prom

"Almost Paradise" was the theme for this year's prom. It was presented by the junior class on May 11.

The music was provided by a local group called "Caliber." There were many up-beat songs but more enjoyable, pre-recorded tapes played slower songs by Lionel Richie and other popular artists.

The decoration committee was headed by Kenda Resler. Atmosphere at the prom was romantic with stars and palm trees. The tables were each set with a vase of silk flowers, that were distributed to the females after the prom. Fountains were prominent in two places in the gym.

Jay Price and Kim Gentry were crowned king and queen, accompanied by the theme song "Almost Paradise" after voting was conducted the Friday before and votes were counted by the students that day.

Grads go home

Sunday, June 2, 1985 provided the day for the seniors to graduate in the gymnasium at 3:00 p.m.

Graduating were 241 seniors. Presenting speeches were Joe Grise, salutatorian, Minnie Rajagopalan, valedictorian, Dave Eger, and Beverly Manely.

Dr. Kent Evans presented the charge to the graduates, while Dr. Robert Duell and Mr. Milt Thomas read the names.

School Board president, and Mr. Frank Gardner, GCSB vice-president.

Many assist athletes to achieve their goals

Coaches, managers, and fans played big roles during the sports seasons at Goshen High School.

Coaches, of course, directed daily practices and worked on developing game plans and scouting reports of opposing teams. Among other responsibilities, they also must keep good companionship among the players and make them work together. When game time arrives, coaches must keep the team intense and motivate them.

Although operating behind the scenes, managers are more important than most people realize. They keep things moving in practice so that more can be accomplished. Managers are also responsible for keeping statistics, which are very important to the coach, along with making sure that all of the necessary items are packed for an event at the opposing school.

Sophomore Matt Vanderveer explained, "I'm a manger, because I like to be involved in sports, one way or another." Vanderveer was basketball, football, and track manager.

"Managers are valuable because they do everything that coaches don't want or have time to do," said Eric Davis, freshman track manager.

Also, fans are very important to athletes at an event. By inspiring the athletes, fans can easily intensify the game. The vocal support that is received by the athlete can give a psychological uplift to the athletes that may not be recognized. (by Terry Slabach)

Traumatic

Resignation of Coach Mirer exemplifies the season.

The 1984 Redskin team rallied from a slow start to finish 5-5.

"Fundamental mistakes plagued us the first half of the season. Trent Lambright threw nineteen interceptions in the first seven games and zero in the last three. I think the way we played was good, but our mistakes really hurt us. After we restored our confidence, we were able to come over the hump and win some games and really begin to have some fun," commented Mr. Ken Mirer, head coach.

Matt Jerlecki, junior, entered the program as a starter. He summarized, "Turnovers and inconsistency in the first half of the season seemed to bring the team down to a point we couldn't bounce back from."

Co-Captain Jeremy Zentz, senior, said, "The team attitude reached a stagnant point, we started coasting and the team members were looking to each other for leadership."

With three games left in the season the Redskins carried a 2-5 record into Plymouth. Starting with the upset victory over Plymouth, the Skins won the remainder of its games.

Team work, instead of self-indulgence, sparked performance. Tackle Tony Gonzales, senior, noted, "Team unity played a large part at the end of our season. People stopped worrying about individual accomplishments and put their efforts toward a team goal."

Mark Eveler, senior co-captain said, "Things started going our way; we got some key breaks. We started playing some good Redskin football."

The Junior Varsity was guided to a 2-5 record under ex-GHS standout Walter Drapeza. The freshmen finished with a respectable 4-2-1 mark under first year coaches Randy Carpenter and Bob Hoke.

Outstanding individual achievements were noticed: MVP and defensive back award, Zentz; defensive lineman award, Jon Bailey; offensive lineman award, Rod Vanderwey; offensive award, Trent Lambright; WKAM coaches award, Adam Rassi; and most outstanding freshman, Marcell Yoder. (by J. Rohrer)

BOYS

"There was a real contrast between the boy's and girl's squads, having seven returning letter winners on the girl's squad, while only two letter winners returned on the boys squad," stated Coach Rick Clark.

The boy's squad was led by the two senior lettermen, Pepe Diaz and Steve Sentell, Diaz leading the team with 108 points and Sentell second with 66 points.

Late in the year, juniors Steve Guipe, Tom Roberts, and sophomore Dan Eger came on strong to help the squad in both the Conference and Sectional meets. Guipe finished second, and Eger fifth for the team at Conference, while at Sectional, Roberts was second, Guipe third, and Eger fourth for the team.

"This year's team was young and inexperienced, but we progressed well during the year and it was a fairly good year for the team," said Diaz.

Award winners for the 84-85 season were as follows: Diaz, Most Valuable; Sentell, Paul Underwood Mental Attitude Award; Tom Roberts, Most Improved; Eger, WKAM Coaches Award.

GIRLS

"The girls squad maintained a positive attitude throughout the season and were very cooperative. The girls team was one of the hardest working groups I have ever had," stated Coach Rick Clark about the girls. The girls were led by seniors Kim Gentry and Susan Hersherberger, and junior Carrie Grise. Grise led the team with 87 points, Gentry next with 74 points, and followed by Sue Hunsberger with 63 points.

The girls were hindered by the injuries to junior Michele Babin, and sophomore Kim Lehr, but were still very successful and accomplished many of their pre-season goals.

"Several injuries and illnesses by key people prevented us from achieving some of our goals such as defending our Conference title. However, as a senior I'm proud of our overall record during the past several years and wish future teams the best of luck," commented Gentry.

New coach inherits weak team

Going through a transition year, the boys' tennis team under first-year coach, Mr. Mike Rozelle, finished the season with a 3-12 record.

However, the team did not experience a totally disappointing year. Rozelle noted that the team steadily improved.

"Near the end of the season, we lost five matches by the score of 3-2. We could have won those matches," predicted Rozelle.

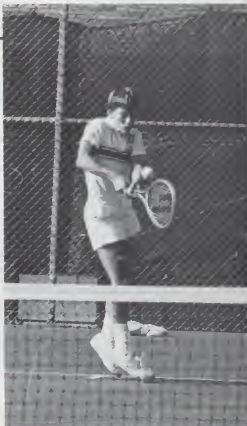

He stated that the overall performance at the NLC tournament was not at all satisfying. Terry Slabach, junior, finished third in number three singles, while Tim Hildebrand and Mike Essig, freshmen, finished sixth in number two doubles.

With a new coach, the players had to adjust to new philosophies and a new coaching style, which made the season difficult. Rozelle said, "Coaching is enjoyable, partly because it is a lifetime game."

Todd Martin, senior, stated "It was a rough year, but the team's spirit and close-knit friendship kept the team going."

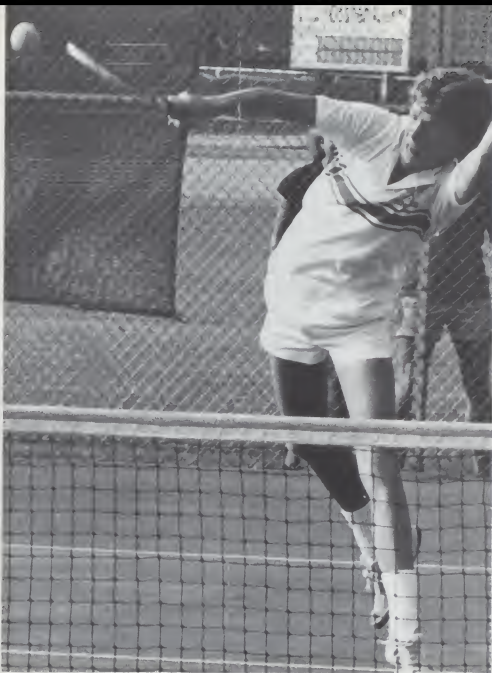

At the banquet on October 23, various awards were presented. Martin received the Tom Sovine Career Achievement Award, which is given to the senior with the most career victories; Slabach, MVP Award and the Mental Attitude Award; Hildebrand, Most Improved Player Award; and Essig the WKAM Coach's Award. Girls win

"Although the team didn't win sectional as a lot of people predicted, we developed in performance. Coach Kettlebar was a great moral booster to us," commented four-year player Janet Fager, senior.

Fager also stated that winning the Goshen Invitational was one of the best moments for the squad.

Ending the volleyball season with a record of 11-9, the team was led by co-captains Kim Haney and Marcy Bixler, seniors. Bixler was named MVP, while Haney was the recipient of the Barb Zook Mental Attitude Award.

Bixler was named to the All Around Conference First Team, while Sue Sorg, senior, had an Honorable Mention to the First Team.

Accomplishing a 12-1 record and a 22nd placing at the State finals held in Indianapolis, the girls' swim team was Goshen Relays Champions and Northern Lakes Conference champions.

Leena Lappala, senior, commented on the chance to compete at the state finals, "It was a very exciting experience."

Penn bows to Goshen

Unlike Daedalus and his invention to fly to freedom, the boys' basketball team wasn't able to fly away from its losing season.

However, the team did start quickly to win its first game beating Northridge 54-51. Nevertheless, after that the skins ran into some trouble. The team could play three good quarters. Then, fundamental mistakes would plague the Redskins.

Senior guard, Jon Eshelman noted "We played just good enough to lose, meaning we played good, but not good enough to win."

Even though the skins record was only 5-17, there were positive events sparkling the Skins on game after game.

"Team enthusiasm sparked the team to attack each game with a positive and exciting attitude. This carried the team to an impressive under-dog victory over heavily-favored and defending Sectional Champs, Penn," said Mr. Brian Eldridge, assistant coach.

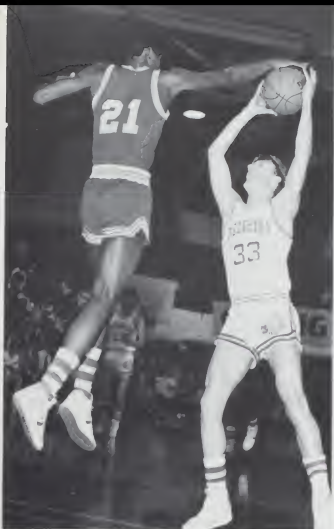

Leading the Redskins during the season were Jeff VanCuren, Mike Snyder, and John Eshelman, seniors. VanCuren was the MVP, while Snyder was named the honorary captain and received the mental attitude award. Sink said, "The highlight of the season was beating Northwood in four overtimes by five points."

In the same game, Bixler broke the single game scoring record with 34 points. She also had two other all time records with the best shooting percent-

Bardwell shines in swim season

Under the first year head coach Mr. Jim Torney, and assistant coach Mrs. Helen Rose, the Goshen High School boys' swim team raced to a 9-5 dual meet record.

The team finished third in the Goshen Relays, third in the Northern Lakes Conference meet, and sectional champions Shawn Bardwell, senior and 50 yd. freestyle, and Jeff Wray, senior and 500 yd. freestyle, led the team to a third place finish in the sectional.

Bardwell and Wray advanced to the State, where Bardwell placed fifth in the 50 yd. freestyle and ninth in the 100 yd. freestyle.

Tri-captains for the season were Seniors Mark Mahoney, sprint freestyle, butterfly, and breaststroke; Wray, distance free style; and Bardwell, sprint freestyle.

Bardwell broke the school record for the 100 yd. freestyle with a time of :48.1.

"We had a good year, even with the changes in the coaching staff. We also had a good time and were able to work when we had to," Bardwell said about the season.

Four qualify for regional Finishing the season with mixed feelings, Coach Mr. Carl Weaver thought there had been improvement in the team since the beginning of the season.

Overall, there was inconsistent team effort, although we had some good individual performances, commented Weaver.

Coach Mr. Rick Clark said, "Our best team performance was at the NLC meet."

Some individuals who fared well were the regional qualifiers Roger Conant, sophomore, highjump; Craig Lockerbie, junior, polevault; and Mike Snyder, senior, 400 meter dash.

"Other than winning the CMA relays, I feel that we did not perform up to our capabilities as a team," said Steve Sentell, senior.

Nevertheless, Keith Wilfong senior, said "Field events really helped pick up the slack."

Tracksters complete best ever

It was a successful year for the girls, according to Miss Brooke Doriot, coach.

In her first year of coaching, the girls finished the season with an 8-1 record, 6-1 in the NLC.

Experience played a big role during the season. "Good senior leadership from Kris Ankney, Kim Gentry, and Teresa Yoder provided the underclassmen with support and knowledge," claimed Doriot.

The season was full of improvement during the season. "Several girls continued to improve their personal bests throughout the season," stated Doriot.

Fourteen girls qualified for sectional competition. Ankney in the discus; Tracey Streit, junior, in the high jump; and Jenny Drolet, freshman, in the 200 meters, advanced to regionals.

"We got a lot accomplished and had fun doing it," summarized Annette Rhoades, junior. (by Terry Slabach)

Baseball enjoys special moments

Even though the 1985 Redskins were not expected to have a very promising season, the Skins started off with a bang, winning eight of its first 10 games.

The team had impressive victories over 15th ranked Warsaw, DeKalb, who it hadn't beaten in eight years, and second ranked LaPorte.

The Redskins accomplished a 17th place ranking. Seven seniors led the Skins to its 22-9 season.

"Without a doubt these are the best bunch of seniors we've ever had," said Coach Mr. Devon Hoffman.

Ending the season tying in single season wins (22) and NLC wins (10), Al Kemper had a chance to break the batting average record by hitting .418. Also, two RBI records fell to Kemper's bat. He ripped 36 RBI's topping the record he set last year.

"It was our best season ever," said coach Mr. Doug Cartwright, after his 10th season.

The girls tennis team finished the year with a 17-2 record, excluding first place finishes in the Dekalb Invitational and the Whitko Invitational. The lady netters were the first team to win an NLC title since girls tennis has been a sport at GHS.

The only two losses of the season were both to Elkhart Central. The first loss came in the first match of the year and the second loss was provided at the Sectional tournament, which ended the brilliant season.

"We were so close," said Sue Strycker, senior co-captain. "A couple of points made the difference in the whole match."

Coach Cartwright commented,

"It was a nice team to work with. They were a nice bunch of girls. I would have really liked to win sectional, but I was happy with the accomplishments we did have."

The lady Redskins were supported by a tough singles trio of Deb Stauffer, junior, and seniors Strycker and Julie Eshelman, which had a total combined record of 70 wins and five losses.

Also, during the 85 season, the Redskins set six new school records. These were Eshelman, 61 career wins; Strycker, 56 career singles wins; Shawnee Essig, 38 career doubles wins; Stauffer and Strycker, 24 season singles wins; 96 percent best season singles winning percentage; and Susan Hunsberger and Ingrid Hess, 22 season doubles wins. Golfers end in the ruff

"A season of inconsistency," was the way that Mr. Wayne Lambright, coach, described the boys golf season.

Lack of experience in competitive golf led the Skins to the team's worst season in four years. The team, containing only one senior, and several promising freshmen, couldn't compete with the larger and more experienced schools, commented Lambright.

Lambright noted that there was good improvement throughout the season.

"The best two scores of the season came in the last two matches of the season," exclaimed Lambright.

With a 5-16 team record, some team members thought it was a tough year.

"It was a difficult season. Some of the matches we should have won, but we didn't play to our abilities," said Mark Wolf, junior.

For the second year in a row, Trent Lambright, junior, was named MVP and was also, placed on the NLC team. He advanced to the regionals. Jeff Shaver, the only senior on the team, was the captain. (by Terry Slabach)

Spirited

Girls overpar

"We made a lot of progress during the season and had fun while doing it," commented Coach Mr. Wayne Lambright on the girls' golf team's performance.

Starting the season with only four returning letter winners and only eight girls with a realistic chance to make the varsity team, the team improved throughout the season to place third in the sectional and ninth in the regional.

Kris Ankney, senior, "We all looked for support in each other and we found it even though we didn't win most matches." In addition Kim Johnson declared, "We looked forward to each match with the hope of winning. We all showed team spirit and supported each other during the low points of the season. We also cheered on everybody during the high point of the season too."

This year's award winners were Amy Zoller, Most Improved; Deb Stauffer, WKAM Coach's Award; Ankney, MVP and captain. (by Lori Wenger)

Faces Make GHS

The people that met while walking through the halls at Goshen High School all uniquely affected each other.

There is the person that you could never raise enough nerve to smile at or say "Hi" to when you passed. The ceiling or floor always seemed like a better place to look when he or she walked by. A special girl or guy could turn a usually outgoing friendly person into a shy reserved student and calling them on the phone would be almost worse than death.

You've spotted the small squeaky freshman that's been walking through the senior hall too often. "If he just wouldn't go out of his way to act older or be like one of the guys. He has to be taught a lesson." You purposely block his path, thinking a dirty look and a sharp "go around" will convey your message. Freshmen seem to turn every upper classman into an animal.

Then there's the class brain. Each class has one. It seems like he carries his entire locker with him to every class.

With his Biology 4 textbook in hand and his straight ahead look, it seems as though he has a greater-than-thou attitude. His I.Q. ratio reads like a Nipso electric bill. Both amounts make you ill just thinking about them. You really want to strangle the "brain" when he reacts to missing two questions on a test that you received a "C" on. First, he looks astonished at missing the two questions. Then, he questions the teachers ability to grade tests.

"Are you sure you didn't make a mistake and grade this wrong?"

It makes you want to throw an eraser at him.

It's almost time for the bell to ring and suddenly you smell the familiar scent of tobacco. You notice the source of this scent is hurrying to his locker. It is none of the many "drugies" who rush down to the smoking area between classes to get in a quick puff. They basically all look alike with old tee-shirts (usually of heavy metal rock groups), jeans, and donned with either a jean or leather jacket. When you see one of them you try to keep your distance.

All of these characters made life more interesting on the GHS campus by their daily manifestation of habits and personality traits, whether it be by impressing us with their sweet smiles or embarrassing us with their immature behavior. (by Brett Mathis and Linda Nisley)

Busy senior year passes in a flash

Oh no, I'm not ready for school to start. The summer went by so fast. Are you going to the football game? ... Brother's leaving, all right! I get the waterbed ... There goes all my money for new clothes ... Do you have the answers for the Civics test? Isn't that a stupid class? ... Man, I have too much homework ... I never have time to do anything. Let's skip next hour! ... I have to work today. Where do you work? Baskin Robbins ... McDonalds ... Peddler's Village ... Green-croft ... Odell's ... Burger King ... Kroger's. Oh, I'm so tired; I want to go to sleep ... Have you heard who's pregnant now? ... Merry Christmas—no school for two weeks! ... How long 'til Spring Break? Marine Biology—what a blast—fun and sun but some work, too. School's almost over. I can hardly wait, but it's sad too ... The prom in one week! Yeah, then the relays ... Are there any parties this weekend? ... Where are ya goin' to college? ... Can you believe we are GRADUATING?! (by Tracy Slabach)

Bits, chips compute

"Mr. Lambright, I locked the disk drive out!" "How do you get the printer to work?" "What drive is the disk in?" Mr. Wayne Lambright, provides the answers in computer math.

Lambright's position here is truly a unique one. Besides acting as boys' and girls' golf coach, he is also co-chairman of the math department. In addition, he keeps statistics for the boys freshmen and varsity basketball teams. But most importantly, he is a teacher.

Lambright teaches computer math, at three different skill levels. He is the first teacher who has a schedule totally devoted to computer classes. This new curriculum is a direct reflection of the recent computer boom in businesses and homes. With the amount of student interest, the administration thought it necessary to offer more computer opportunities. The choice-elect for the job proved beneficial to students.

A definition for the word teaching is "a precept or doctrine." The doctrine of Lambright, beyond the realm of computer science, is that students realize that learning is a lifelong process. (by Craig Showalter)

Slabaugh teaches more than what meets the eyes

Even as juniors, the word "Civics" conjured up thoughts of long hours of research done for an optional paper, unfair grading systems, and lots of frustration.

As juniors, the 85 seniors were bombarded with horror stories of an impossible teacher teaching an impossible class. These horrifying stories seemed to be blown out of proportion. "There's a change in kids' attitudes after they know the class," commented Mr. Max Slabaugh.

Slabaugh draws upon his own everyday experiences to help communicate to the class the workings of government. He also uses his experiences to illustrate that, "The Basic principles in government and the Constitution apply to our everyday lives."

Slabaugh's interests vary widely. In the summer months he spends his days building small structures such as garages, sheds, and occasionally a house. Sunday mornings and evenings he can be found directing his church's choir.

If nothing else, Slabaugh wants every senior who passes through his class to learn at least one mode. "If you work a little harder you'll be more successful." (by Todd Chupp/Brett Mathis)

Community

The front counter is only one of the many workings of a pizza parlour. Yet, Senior Dennis Cripe's 'back counter' chore is a vital aspect of the operation. (by Rohrer)

Community prepares students

Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) was a new student action group to Goshen High School. This was only one of the many community activities that involved GHS students.

Another community activity of GHS students was working at jobs. Shawn Whittern, sophomore, was employed by her parents. "I feel that my job, even if it is at my parents' store, is a very good experience. It gives me the spending money I need for the things I want to buy."

"The money is nice," said Brett Mathis, senior, "but school does come first." Mathis was employed at Krogers Supermarket as a stock clerk.

Craig Showalter, junior, was employed at Quality Farm and Fleet. "A job gives you the vocational training that you can't get in school. It gives you a second source of education."

Community activities not only improved the esteem of the student body, but also enhanced the individual. The more community oriented an individual was, the better he conducted himself in a public situation.

There were obvious chances to become involved with the community. The better acquainted GHS students were with the community, the better prepared they were to face the day to day interaction with life upon graduation. (by Melissa Wilden)

Cuzzacrea stops pucks well

Mark Cuzzacrea, an 18-year-old who plays high school hockey, claimed a unique position.

Cuzzacrea played for Riley High School. "For awhile we had an Elkart County Team, but participation was low so we had to combine with Riley," he explained.

He became interested in hockey because it combined skill with smarts like no other sport in the world.

"I like fast things, I guess," he said.

Positioned as a goalie for the five of the 13 years he had been playing hockey, he has been rated the number one goalie for three years.

Even though a 100 m.p.h. flying puck remains scary for Cuzzacrea, a human target is the best spot a guy could be in, claimed Cuzzacrea. (by J. Rohrer)

(WORK IN A HOSPITAL)

And you thought hospitals only employed doctors and nurses. Consumer expectations and demands on hospitals have opened up unbelievable new career opportunities for young people. Indiana Hospital Association has compiled a list of 200 exciting careers available in Indiana hospitals today.

For example, you could be employed in an Indiana hospital as a communications specialist—in marketing, public relations, or health education.

Or maybe you're more "in line" with computers—be a systems analyst or programmer. If numbers figure in your future, consider accounting, purchasing or payroll. The list goes on—dietitian, personnel director, medical secretary, housekeeper.

Closer to traditional "health" careers are opportunities as a physical therapist; medical lab technician; and nurse or physician working in every medical field from pediatrics to mental health.

HOSPITALS—WHERE CAREERS ARE BORN.

But did you know you could also be a biomedical engineer? A radiologic technologist, medical record administrator, or a nuclear medicine technologist?

Hospitals offer exciting careers that will continue to provide new and challenging opportunities as you grow with them. Indiana hospitals need Indiana people. Contact your local hospital or school guidance counselor for more information.

A NEW TASTE FOR THE SOUTH SIDE

Sweep deemed controversial

Rule changes affected Goshen High School students more than any other event of the year.

Of those rules enacted, one of the most infamous was the hall sweep procedure. Used to encourage students not to linger in the hallways, but to get to class on time, at unannounced times all teachers were to lock their doors as soon as the bell had rung. Those left in the hallway had to register their crime in the attendance office. Two offences meant an afternoon at the newly formed Saturday school.

The hall sweep was met with opposition from students and confused teachers, claiming the rule was part of the inconsistent discipline that plagued the school year. In fact, for the last weeks of May, hall sweeps did not occur.

But Saturday school remained a dreaded four-hour drudge of studying and silence in a classroom until the last week of school. Other uses for the new Saturday school included providing a more harsh punishment than an in-house suspension, but an alternative to an out-of-house suspension. (by Bob Gangwer)

Resignation amends football program

The resignation of Coach Ken Mirer surprised many people.

Mirer thought it was time for a change. "Changes are good for people, as well as for the football program itself," said Mirer.

Mirer met the satisfaction of training a group of people to work together as a team and to go after its goals.

The change has affected the student body at GHS as well as the friends he made during his many years of coaching. He was very positive about this change and felt good about the accomplishments he made for the team. Mr. Randy Robinson was chosen to replace Mirer. (by Lisa Miller and Gail Hess)

Many mourn for lost friends

Sarah Beck, freshman, was a newcomer to the halls of Goshen High School. But what little time she was here was long enough to touch the lives of everyone.

Sarah was a very active person. She loved to play softball, go fishing, and also like to write.

She died in February from Leukemia.

Also, Greg Leatherman, junior, active in cross country, track, and golf, drowned at a dam near New Paris while boating.

Services for Sarah were at the College Mennonite Church, while Greg's were at the First United Methodist Church. Both services were well-attended by GHS students. Whereas GHS friends were pallbearers.

Greg's parents set up a memorial fund for cross country. A last day of school dance was held to collect money for the fund. (special contribution from Journalism student Annette Rhoades, junior)

Cruising laws implemented

Teenage cruising habits were changed slightly this year when law officers changed enforcement procedures.

Undercover officers posed as cruisers. The number of people arrested and/or ticketed almost tripled. Most of the people being ticketed, though, were out of town cruisers not expecting this harsh crackdown.

Many students thought the new policy was a good strategy. It has kept the drunk driving, which had become such a vital issue, down to safer levels.

Many cruisers felt that the undercover police were not needed and actually caused problems. Many adults, however, felt that the "unknown presence" kept the streets safer for innocent cruisers. (by Alan Holder)

Goshen settles for sixth at Relays

Starting the day with warm, sunny weather, the 43rd annual Goshen Relays proved to be another success. Goshen, the defending team champion, lost its Class B title to Norwell High School to settle at sixth place. Gary Roosevelt High School won the Class A title. Forty-one high school teams participated in the competitions.

"The team didn't have much momentum this year, so their performance wasn't to its full potential. We did a real nice job in the 800 m. relay," said co-coach, Mr. Rick Clark.

Susan Harris, senior, was elected by the student body to be crowned queen. Her court is as follows: Chris Gouker and Kim Sorg, seniors; Margaret Sanders, junior; Jennifer Feeney, sophomore; Terri and Tami Pike, freshmen. Mr. Robert Matthews, a former GHS teacher, was the honorary referee.

The relays' spirit week consisted of several competitions. The biggest contest was the dress up days which were Nerd Day, Sweats Day, Beach Day, Career Day, and Big Red Day. The Freshmen and Sophomore classes and the Senior and Junior classes were teamed together because of class proportions. Other competitions were a legs contest, water balloon throwing, and grapefruit tossing, where grapefruits were passed to another person using only the head and neck. The Senior-Junior team won the competitions overall. (by Linda Nisley)

In the relay, Mike Snyder hands the baton to Craig Lockerbie. (by Root)

Passing the grapefruit down the human line toward the other end of the football field is Becky Swanson, Freshman. (by Whittern)

Thoughts shouuded by blind eyes ll that is seen by the eye is not always felt by the heart. Too often in this fast-paced world true, long lasting qualities such as honesty and kindness go unnoticed and in their place men see such short sighted whimsical persons as coldness and rebellion.

They respect these personalities and adopt them as their own, only to be let down when they are faced with the real world.

Their shield of coldness is melted and usually rebellious attitude is doused by fear. While the man that was once unseen and untwarded for his good deeds will face the world and be acknowledged.

The unmasked man wishes blessings for humanity and not just for himself. He does more than wishes, he works toward these goals and finds satisfaction and rewards only when these goals are met. These men and women can be seen RIGHT BEFORE YOUR EYES, if you would only look. (by Brett Mathis)

Nobility

Nobility. A word not often heard.

Alice Cary defined this characteristic in words to be viewed by the Goshen High School student when considering his worth and place in school for preparation for the soon encountered real world.

True worth is in being, not seeming,—
In doing, each day that goes by,
Some little good—not in dreaming
Of great things to do by and by.
For whatever men say in their blindness,
And spite of the fancies of youth,
There's nothing so kingly as kindness,
And nothing so royal as truth.

We get back our mete as we measure—
We cannot do wrong and feel right,
Nor can we give pain and gain pleasure
For justice avenges each slight.
The air for the wing of the sparrow,
The bush for the robin and wren,
But always the path that is narrow,
And straight, for the children of men.

'Tis not in the pages of story
The heart of its ills to beguile,
Though he who makes courtship to glory
Gives all that he hath for her smile.
For when from her heights he has won her,
Alas! it is only to prove
That nothing's so sacred as honor,
And nothing so loyal as love!

We cannot make bargains for blisses,
Nor catch them like fishes in nets;
And sometimes the think our life misses
Helps more than the thing which it gets.
For good lieth not in pursuing,
Nor gaining of great nor of small,
But just in the doing, and doing
As we would be done by, is all.

Through envy, through malice, through hating,
Against the world, early and late
No jot of our courage abating—
Our part is to work and to wait.
And slight is the sting of his trouble
Whose winning are less than his worth;
For he who is honest is noble,
Whatever his fortunes or birth.

—Alice Cary

Michelle Yoder, senior, enjoys the Junior-Senior Prom. One reason the prom goes on relax during the evening were because of sophomores such as Jenny Odle (background) who served punch, snacks, and helped clean after the dance. These sophomores are just a sample of the people who work unseen. (by Root)

2.2. Procedure and data collection

Children were recruited from primary schools in the south of England. The schools were selected to represent a range of socioeconomic status (SES) and were visited by a research team to obtain permission to conduct the study. The research team consisted of a research fellow, a research assistant, and a research nurse. The research fellow and research assistant were trained in the administration of the study and the research nurse was trained in the administration of the study and the administration of the study.
